"PLAY BALL!"

From the Story by John J. Mc Graw Chapter 1
"To the Rescue"

Adapted for the Screen By Frank Farnsworth

At Sarasota, Florida, the New York Giants are in training for the coming baseball season. Two players trying out for places on the team are Jack Rollins, disowned son of Senator Hornell and Rutgers Farnsworth, in his own opinion the world's best pitcher. Interested spectators of the practice games are Thomas W. Sutton, iron, coal and railroad magnate, and his daughter, Doris.

Senator Hornellis in charge of a committee conducting a Government investigation of Sutton's affairs. Count Arriola Segundo, a foreign agent, has been instructed by his superiors to see Sutton and obtain certain favors by whatever means necessary, and his first step is to break into Sutton's hotel room and search his private papers. He is surprised by Maybelle Pratt, Beauty Contest Winner, who falls into his clutches. While fishing, a shark yanks Doris overboard, whose hand is entangled in her line. Jack, also fishing, dives to her rescue and both are imperiled by sharks.
